MOTHER-CHILD ART CLASS

Remember the cool, slippery feel of paint as your fingers smoothed it over a clean sheet of paper? Remember the excitement of discovering blue and red mix to make purple? Remember when art was about play rather than talent? Welcome to the Mother-Child Art Class: A place where parents introduce their very young children (aged 2 to 4 years) to their first art experiences in a fun, supportive atmosphere.

The Mother-Child Art Class, sponsored by the Women's Center, is held weekly at the Cambridge YWCA. Up to ten children (each with a parent) come to play and discover all sorts of new art materials and activities like painting, drawing, cutting/tearing, gluing and playing with playdough. At the same time they're learning to recognize colors and textures, expressing ideas and feelings, improving coordination, and developing creativity and pride in their accomplishments. The main focus of the class is the children's independent exploration of the art activities, but it's the parents' presence and encouragement that really make it a positive learning experience for all.

As teacher, I plan and prepare four age-appropriate activities. Once the kids and moms arrive, they are welcomed, introduced to the activities and then...dig in! I encourage parents to allow their child to choose which activity to start with and when to move along to a new one - all according to their child's developing independence and attention span. The process of discovering the materials is always emphasized over what the creation looks like in the end. There is no wrong way to do an activity! Class ends with a quick clean-up (to help start good habits) followed by an art-related story, a healthy snack and handouts for parents on topics such as: developmental phases in art, activities for home, recipes for homemade art supplies, etc.

The class is free of charge and meets once a week (currently Fridays, 10:30-11:30am) for 10-week sessions. Hopefully we'll be adding a weekend class in the near future. We have four sessions per year: Fall, Winter, Spring and Summer. If you are interested in joining or volunteering, or would like more information, please contact the Women's Center at (617) 354-8807. Or contact me directly at: maquilette@hotmail.com.

On Our Way

Is the newsletter of the Women's Center, published 3 times per year in April, September, and December.

The Women's Center is a non-profit resource and support center for all women and their children, founded in 1971.

Our mission is twofold:

to provide women with the tools and resources they need to emerge from abuse, discrimination, addiction, sexism and racism, harassment, social isolation, violence, poverty, or other injustice to challenge and change attitudes and actions which subjugate women.

Volunteers

The Women's Center gratefully acknowledges the ongoing efforts and contributions of our volunteers.

Thank you for giving so generously of your time and of yourselves.

The Women's Center relies on the generosity of the community to provide our wealth of free programming.

All donations are tax-deductible to the full extent of the law.

WELCOME, NEW BOARD MEMBERS

Welcome Germaine, Donna, Diane and Wynn! We're glad to have you on the Women's Center Board! A few words about and from each one:

Germaine Wong: I have volunteered at the Center for the past two years focusing on technology. I grew up in Jakarta, Indonesia, and attended an international school before coming to the United States to finish high school. I then attended Babson College and received a bachelor degree. Upon graduation, I became a consultant for an information technology company as an information architect before starting my own company. I want to help the Center run more efficiently and be more organized.

Donna Clark: I am delighted to join the Board of the Women's Center. I am a native of Britain, but for four years I have lived in the U.S., first in Chicago and for the last two years in Cambridge. My professional background is in non-profit organizations, and I am currently a fundraiser at Pine Street Inn in Boston. I have always been a keen supporter and campaigner for women's rights, and I look forward to building on the Center's achievements, and serving the women's community.

Diane Loud: I am very excited to join the Board. I have been involved with the Women's Center for over 10 years, as a group member, a volunteer staffer, a group leader, and a counselor. I feel the Women's Center is a very special place. I am a psychologist, and the proud parent of an 11 month old girl. I am honored to be part of the future of the Center, and I look forward to bringing my expertise in psychology and program planning to the Board, learning from other women, and responding to the challenges ahead.

Wynn Huang: I am looking forward to working with the Women's Center and to building on my work earlier this year as the TH&T Legal Counselor-in-Residence at the Center for Women & Enterprise to further serve the needs and address the concerns of women. I am a corporate attorney at Testa, Hurwitz & Thibault, LLP and value the opportunity to contribute with my legal experience. At Testa, I have a general corporate practice representing public and private companies.

SAYING GOOD-BYE

The neighborhood boys had broken another window.

Luckily I knew how to putty in a new pane. My place at the Women's Center was secure! That was in 1972, when I was fortunate enough to be one of a group of women trying to start a women's center in the Boston area. We were carried away by the excitement that came with creating something new and, we thought, important. Scrambling for money to pay the bills, we had no paid staff, and, after a fire, no electricity. Yet women came, groups and projects began, and we were on our way!

The Women's Center has grown and flourished despite the ever-challenging task of getting funding. Now it's 2003, and I plan to say good-bye to working here. The Women's Center has meant so much to me! The building itself – it's been an anchor to me. I've fiddled and fixed, grateful to care for this beautiful old house. The women I've met and even those I haven't – each with her stories, her strengths and her needs – have inspired and touched me. Women have created groups for themselves and, at the same time, for others. Women have volunteered their time, greeting and attending to other women with kindness, or caring for children, or helping out in so many other ways. The good will, generosity and kindness of so many have made the Women's Center such an incredible place

A place that is hard for me to leave, a place I am proud to have been part of. I will not leave behind my memories. I am so grateful for having been associated with the Women's Center over all these years! Thank you to all who have crossed my path.

-In sisterhood, Judy Norris

From the Desk of the Fundraiser

Imagine at 6 years old knowing that you have the power to change the world around you! That's what the children of Women of Action (WOA) experience every time they see signs on MBTA buses informing passengers of their right to use wheelchair lifts - a right now afforded to moms with strollers. They point to the signs WOA won, shouting, "Look! We did that!"

Whether it's through our Helpline, support groups and workshops, or activist groups, women and their children realize their true power at the Women's Center. They see that they deserve justice and respect. Then they begin the fight to obtain it in their own lives and in their communities.

Like most non-profits this year, the Women's Center is struggling to meet its budget. As fall and year end approach, we ask that you go that extra mile. Your donation to the Women's Center helps to light a life-changing spark in the eyes and hearts of so many women and children. Working together, we support women and children so that they too may one day say with pride, "Look! We did that!"

-Nicole Marcotte

An Intern's View

I have been an intern at the Women's Center for the summer, and as September arrives and my time here comes to a close, I find myself looking back, attempting to attach a moral, one specific lesson, one final thing to say.

Coming in as an intern, I was expecting cold clean lines, panes of glass separating people who never spoke to each other, shiny black phones, stainless steel desks. This is what I had been told being an undergrad intern consisted of, but it was most definitely not what I found. I found comfy couches, stained glass, the art of women, friendly conversation, a relaxed and supportive atmosphere.

Being an intern here is significantly different than the internships my friends are completing, working in offices. I have become increasingly aware that, unlike them, I am not working in a place run on corporate money and the oozing labor of apathetic nine-to-fivers. The Women's Center is run on the sweat of dedicated employees and volunteers and the kindness of community members. It is a house born of the process of revolution and the collaboration of women. When things happen here, they happen because somebody worked hard, tried hard, organized, or was inspired.

So I leave, not exactly changed, but more resolute in the idea that change from the hands of a small group of thoughtful committed women is not an ideal, but a reality, and one that is quietly taking place right off of Central Square in Cambridge.

Judy Norris is an incredible woman who has truly been a cornerstone of the Women's Center for its entire existence - the last 32 years. (I know Judy very well, as she has been my mom for the last 35!). Judy was part of the group of women who engaged in the truly revolutionary undertaking of creating the Women's Center from scratch in 1971, the beginnings of the thriving Women's Center we know today. After devoting herself to the Women's Center as a full-time volunteer for almost a third of a century(!), Judy will be leaving in October, 2003. It will be a difficult parting on both sides, as Judy has given so much to, and gotten so much back from the Women's Center.

Those of us who know and work with Judy know that she is modest, humble, works quietly behind the scenes, and shies away from the spotlight. She will probably be embarrassed by my singing her praises, but here I go....

I firmly believe the Women's Center would not be here today if not for Judy's infinite contributions. To name a few: Judy has volunteered tens of thousands of hours to the Women's Center. She has lovingly cared for the building at 46 Pleasant Street. When I visit the Center, I see marks of Judy all over the house, inside and out - in the furniture and carpet donations she secured, the walls she painted, the many things she built and fixed, the commemorative tiles she helped conceive and install, the plants she's cared for, and on and on. She has nurtured and supported numerous struggling projects and groups. She has trained and inspired hundreds of volunteers and interns. She has listened to countless women in need with patience, compassion, and encouragement. She has proudly carried the Women's Center banner at many parades and staffed the Women's Center table at dozens of events. She has folded, labeled, and sorted hundreds of thousands of newsletters. She has raised money and secured in-kind donations for the Center. She has diligently publicized Women's Center programs. Through it all, Judy has treated others with respect and dignity. To me, Judy epitomizes the Women's Center's ideal of women helping each other and empowering ourselves, both individually and collectively.

So it is with a lot of emotion and many memories that the Women's Center community says good-bye to Judy and she to it. Its hard to find the words to thank Judy for all she has done for the Center. So I'll end this article with a favorite quote of Judy's by Marie Ebner von Eschenbach: "those whom we support hold us up in life." Thank you, Judy, for holding us up and letting us hold you up. The Women's Center truly won't be the same without you.

-- Jennifer Norris

P.S. The Women's Center will be organizing a good-bye celebration for Judy. If anyone has ideas or would like to help, please email Mary Quinn at: Mary@cambridgewomenscenter.org

In September the Women's Center and the R.O.S.E. Fund, offer a series of cooking and nutrition classes to battered and formerly battered women, with dinner and childcare provided.

Start the weekend by learning something new, while giving yourself a real treat!

As each class begins, women and children enjoy a snack prepared by chef Petal Joseph. Then, our chef provides a 'hands on' cooking lesson, while nutritionist, Leslie Oliver, offers tips about healthy and affordable eating. Everyone pitches in to help create the delicious meal and women take advantage of the opportunity to get to know one another. At the end of the evening, everyone sits down together for a family-style meal prepared during the cooking class. At the end of the 6-week series, each participant receives a free gift!

A great ending to a rough week or an exciting beginning to a new weekend - it doesn't matter. This workshop series is just the recipe. For more information or to RSVP, call (617)354-8807 right away!

Liquid Poets

Liquid Poets is a women's poetry group dedicated to creating a safe space for women to read, write, and discuss poetry. Women with any level of experience are welcome to attend. Even if you have never finished writing a poem or have just recently become interested in poetry, please join us. We only require an open mind and a friendly attitude- please come willing to share your ideas and writings with others. Our meetings take place from 7-9pm on the 2nd and 4th Wednesday of each month. During our meetings, we read and discuss a collection of published poetry together, and then do short free writes or writing exercises. Everyone is encouraged but not obligated to share. Each week, the facilitator will pick topics such as "Women and Children", "The Poems of Sylvia Plath", "Poems of Dissent," "Children's Poetry" or others. If you are interested in attending or have questions, please contact Madeline at: liquidwriters@hotmail.com
